“[Story] has only one merit: that of making the audience want to know what happens next.

And conversely, it can only have one fault: that of making the audience NOT want to know what happens next.”

--E.M. Forster, Aspects of the Novel

Nested Goals

I want to buy a horse...
BUT, I need gold.

So I go to the dungeon to get gold... BUT, I need a key.

So I go to the Wizard to get the key...BUT, I need to give him magic herbs.

So I go out to gather the herbs... BUT, I have to bribe the trolls...

So I have to kill the Goblin King... BUT the Goblin King is impervious to normal weapons...

“And Then” Storytelling

We went to the Princess’s Castle...

...AND THEN...

...we fought a dragon...

...AND THEN...

...we found a unicorn...

“Because” Storytelling

We went to the Princess’s Castle...
...BUT when we got there, a dragon was attacking it.

SO, BECAUSE we went to the Castle...
...we fought a dragon.

BUT in killing it, the knight was injured.
SO, BECAUSE we fought a dragon...
