PART.02

COLLABORATION

LOST

Often, it's the first challenge in a relationship

The Chinese name of the movie is literally: Lost in Tokyo

PREPARATION? ADAPTION

HOW WE GET TOGETHER

In game development, things are a bit similar

OPPORTUNITY

EXPECTATION

COMMUNICATION

When we spot opportunities, we don't always see the full context

EXPECTATION

Expectations often come in implicit forms

OVERPROMISING AND OVERDEMANDING

Partnerships can become tense with continuous friction

WHY?

There's no silver bullet

Game development requires frequent communications

Cross cultural partnership requires even more communications

MEETINGS, PROCEDURES, COMMITTEES

We understand its importance and strive to excel

It's not just about the plot, it's more about the PLAYER

LOST IN COMMUNICATION

It happens all the time

Be mindful of tone, vocabulary, tense, and context from the players' perspectives

ARE GAME-DEV UNIFORM?

When we talk about games, are we talking about a uniform concept?

Beware of the underlying and subtle variances in the globalized game industry

TAKEN AS DEFAULT

We've all played and made games for years so we assume there are common understandings

However, be cautious: we might be more different than we can imagine

CONTEXT BEFORE CONTRAST

UNDERSTANDING THE CONTEXT

Helps us put ourselves in others' shoes

Who are our players?

What are our principles?

How do we maintain alignment?

How can we improve our current state and feelings?

PLAYER BEFORE PLOT

KEY EFFECT

A key player will be directive in a project

THE NATURE OF A KEY PLAYER

ALTRUIISM

PROACTIVE

PLAYER-ORIENTED

TIMELINE

PROJECT TIMELINE

We will always face challenges

The good thing is, with enough context, we face challenges together

GAME WORLD TIMELINE

We will always meet our friends

The best thing is, we will always encounter friends in this adventure, especially those who share our love for games
